“My impression is that self insured employers handle their claims effectively and conduct appropriate investigations from the start. They tend to manage their claims internally and do not use the Tribunal as a claims management tool. As a result their disputes are real and serious.”

A decorative graphic on the left side of the slide, consisting of a light green vertical bar and a dark blue horizontal bar with rounded ends.

“They are generally good to deal with because if settlement is an option they are realistic and bring a wide range of settlement options to the negotiating table”
